Top iPhone COOKING Apps

Epicurious – free!

Arguably the iPhone's first serious recipe app, and by far its best. First and foremost, Epicurious is a front-end for a bogglingly huge library of recipes lifted from the pages of Bon Appetit, Gourmet, and other generally reputable sources, most of which are accompanied by delicious photos.

How to Cook Everything – $5.00

Based on Mark Bittman's legendary cookbook/kitchen guide of the same name, How To Cook Everything holds a new cook's hand through embarrassing basics, and give them plenty to work with once they've found their feet.

Healthy Recipes – free!

This app packs fewer frills than Epicurious and swaps delicious photos for cold, hard nutritional facts but the recipes sound lovely and it even allows you to search for dishes by calories.

Allrecipes.com Dinner Spinner – free!

This app brings you the recipe site's contents and features right on your iPhone. This free app features thousands of top-rated recipes with photos and reviews from Allrecipes' community members. The app also has a Dinner Spinner feature which lets you choose recipes by dish type, ingredient, and desired "ready in" time. And if you have no idea what specific recipes you're looking for, just shake your phone and the app will suggest an exciting recipe that you may want to prepare.

TinyKitchen Cooking App – $3.99

This iPhone cooking app brags of being the ultimate kitchen helper as it allows you to organize your recipes, shop for ingredients, and share with your friends. The app lets you search for recipes from its database containing more than 70,000 entries housed on RecipeSource.com and download them onto your iPhone. It also helps you shop for those hard-to-find ingredients that will make your dishes complete, as well as enabling you to create shopping lists.

20 Minute Meals – Jamie Olivier – $7.99

The app provides 55 mouth-watering recipes with easy to follow steps on how to prepare them. It also has 21 exclusive videos of Jamie Oliver, who is a famous UK chef. Other features of the app include – interactive shopping list, intuitive design and interface, powerful browse and search functionality, effectively recorded voice prompts that guides you on what to do next and more.

More Breakfast – $0.99

The app provides you with the most comprehensive listing of power breakfasts to help you and your family start the day right. It's got recipes for waffles, french toasts, eggs, bagel, sausage and practically all the breakfast meals that you can possibly think of.

Kitchen Calculator PRO – $3.99

It's very important to have this tool, especially if you are following the instructions on cook books and recipe guides. Definitely at one point in time, you'll need to convert something or calculate something while cooking. This is the reason why you would want to have this app since it allows you to scale up/down recipes, convert ingredients' weight or volume, and other task that require you to calculate something.
