

Art Classes at Gamble Place

About Gamble Place

Guests to Gamble Place can step back in time to experience the same pristine environment that James N. Gamble (of Proctor & Gamble) found so inviting during his first visit to the area in the late 1800's. This 175-acre property, included in the National Register of Historic Places features an historical home, cottage and Citrus Packing House. The "Florida cracker-style" house, named "Egwanulti" (a Native American word meaning "by the water"), was built in 1907, and was used as a winter retreat. The once privately-owned Citrus Packing House is the only one currently in existence in its original location in Florida. This vanishing piece of history is significant to Florida and our visitors. In addition to the buildings, visitors can observe wildlife, ancient cypress trees and beautiful towering pines.
